As a business advisor, mediator, negotiator and litigator, Richard I. Janvey is entrusted with addressing clients' most significant challenges. He counsels clients on commercial relationships, negotiates and mediates intra- and inter-company conflicts and advocates powerfully in court. He is brought in by boards of directors of commercial and nonprofit organizations to conduct internal investigations and to untangle all kinds of difficult situations.

Integrating his counseling and litigation skills, Richard also mediates disputes for clients and facilitates resolution through less expensive, contentious and time-consuming proceedings. He has formal training in mediation from The Program on Negotiation at Harvard Law School.

His clients are closely-held businesses, partnerships, corporations, foreign investors, investment funds, senior executive officers and directors, and not-for-profit organizations.

Richard's litigation and dispute resolution experience encompasses commercial, financial, securities, partnership, cross-border transactions, bankruptcy, business torts, fraud, breach of fiduciary duty, trade secrets and restrictive covenant litigation.

As a business counselor and securities lawyer, Richard advises on and negotiates:

- Mergers and Acquisitions
- Commercial Relationships
- Regulatory Compliance
- Shareholder/Partnership Agreements and Dissolutions
- Real Estate Acquisition and Sales
- Employment/Compensation
